Rescue Boat Finds Three Italia Survivors

Moscow, July 11.—Three members of the crew of the wrecked dirigible, Italia, missing since they set out alone on a rescue mission, have been located by a Russian aviator, according to a radio message today from the Russian ice breaker, Krasin.

The Krasin has been operating in the ice in the vicinity of North-east in an effort to rescue the group of survivors headed by Vig-tiland.

The group now reported located is understood to be composed of Dr. Finn Malmgren, Capt. Alberto Mar-cho and Capt. Filipp. For the last two weeks they have been given up for lost.

The Malmgren party was floating on the ice when located.

It was reported here that an effort will be made by the command-ers of the Krasin to approach the place where the three men were found and to take them aboard the vessel. If this is not possible, one of the Russian aviators with the Krasin will probably attempt a landing on the ice floes to rescue the men.

See Two Waving Flags
Aviator Chuchnevsky, who hop-ed off near the Krasin in a sear-ch reported that the group were being helpless on an ice floe in 45 latitude and 25-45 west longi-tude. The floe was surrounded by ice of crushed ice.

Chuchnevsky circled over the party five times making observa-tions. Two members of the party waved flags, but the third was lying down upon the ice motionless and apparently dead.

Many mists developed compelled the Krasin to land upon Northeast.

The commander of the Krasin reported that he is attempting to rescue the group, but that the pas-sage of the floe is blocked by huge icebergs.

Five Doomed to Die
London, July 11.—Grave fears were held today that the five ma-ined survivors of the lost dirigible Italia are doomed to die amid the icy wastes north of Spitzbergen.

Warmer weather has set in in the arctic and the ice floes are breaking up. It is believed that re-ports of the men are unable to make any further landings on the floes where the men are camped be-cause of the thaw.

However, the ice has not yet su-tered. (Continued on Page 4)

Paris, July 11.—France decided to- day upon acceptance of the proposed American anti-war treaty on con- ditions that it does not infringe on any of the nation's existing commitments under the League of Nations cov- enant and the Locarno pact.

A group of ministers approved Foreign Minister Briand's reply to the American note from Secretary of State Kellogg.

It was understood that the note would be sent to Washington this afternoon and that it will signify Foreign Minister Briand's willing- ness to sign the treaty with reser- vations.

For several weeks the amended draft of the proposed pact has been under scrutiny by the international law experts of the foreign office. In the meantime France has conducted private diplomatic conversations with Great Britain upon the sub- ject.

Ira Mellinger, of Leetonia, was the speaker at the meeting of the Rotary club at the Elks home Tues- day.

Mellinger, speaking on "New Toys," stated that "people today are too much inclined to pick up any new thing and permit the old, and proven issues to pass unheeded as 'things of the past'."

Rev. Arthur M. Clarke was in charge of the meeting.

EARLY MOVE TO RECOGNIZE NEW CHINA IS SEEN

Washington, July 11.—Steadily ac- cumulating evidence in diplomatic circles points to an early move on the part of the United States toward recognition of the new established Nationalist regime in China.

No official comment has come from Secretary of State Kellogg since his recent statement declaring sympathy with the aspiration of forces attempting to unify the ce- lestial empire, but the cables to and from Peking in the last few days have carried ample assurances that this government is at least weigh- ing the pros and cons of recognition.

Minister MacMurray at Peking is avowedly friendly and has repeat- edly thrown his influence, in the parleys of the ambassadors, in the side of moderation and neutrality in the war between Chinese factions.

Secretary Kellogg has stated sev- eral times during the last year that he would be happy to deal with any delegations of Chinese who can speak for a unified nation.

C. C. Wu, informal ambassador of the Nanking government, has been in Washington vigorously since the capture of Peking from the forces of Chang Tso-Lin several weeks ago.

Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee and a close observer of the Chinese history during the past two years, is also kindly disposed toward recog- nition. He has conferred with Wu, at the latter's request, and the im- pression prevails that he has urged recognition at the state department.

Buxter died at 2 p. m. in City hospital from injuries. Binsmore is still in a serious condition.

One man is in City hospital, not expected to live, and another is suffering from serious injuries sustained when a large iron beam upon which they were working in the construction of the new Reil- ly grade school house, South Rose st. in the rear of Reilly field, fell at 9:30 a. m. today.

William Buxter, 32, Greenford, who fell on an iron beam on the first floor, is in a serious condition. His skull was crushed in the fall.

Louis Binsmore, 29, also of Greenford, has a lacerated left wrist, possible broken ribs, and is suffering from the shock of his fall. He will recover, physicians say.

The men were connecting the beam on the second story of the school, and had two bolts riveted, when it began slipping, wit- nesses to the accident say. Buxter was flung down, head first, and fell directly on another iron beam on the first floor 12 feet below.

Binsmore, who jumped when he noticed that the beam was slipping, fell 24 feet to the basement.

Fellow workmen called the city ambulance and they were rushed to the hospital.

HOOVER PLANS DRIVE TO GET WOMEN'S VOTES

Mrs. Hert, Vice Chairman, To Call Conference In Northeastern States

Washington, July 11.—Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, will be the guest of Vice President Dawes at his Evanston, Ill., home during his four-hour stop- over in Chicago next Sunday en- route to President Coolidge's sum- mer camp in Wisconsin.

It will be the first meeting of the nominee with Dawes since Hoover forces turned thumbs down on the vice president at Kansas City a month ago.

Washington, July 11.—Herbert Hoover's campaign for the presi- dency will include a specially or- ganized and nationally conducted drive to capture the votes of the 18,000,000 American women eligible for suffrage in November, it was learned here today at Republican headquarters.

Efforts to swing the feminist vote into the Republican party will in- clude use of state Republican or- ganizations, special women's clubs and independent societies. Hoover himself has approved the prelimi- nary plans for creating special campaign clubs among women inter- ested in public affairs.

The first move to corral the wo- man vote, it was announced, will be a conference of Republican National committeewomen from the north- eastern states. Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, vice-chairman of the Republican National committee, will call the conference and preside. Her purpose will be to initiate the drive for feminist votes in the most At- lantic seaboard states, where many Hoover leaders believe the campaign will be decided.

18 MEN, 16 GIRLS SAVED AS BOAT RUNS ON ROCKS

Pleasure Yacht Strikes Unfinished Breakwater Off Rockport, Mass.

BLINKER LIGHT SEEN BY GUARDS

Improvised Signal Brings Rescuers Two Miles In Heavy Running Sea

Rockport, Mass., July 11.—Thirty- four persons, including 16 girls, were rescued by coastguardsmen in a big surf boat early today after the pleasure yacht Connie, out of Gloucester, ran onto the unfinished breakwater of Sandy Bay, two miles out of this cape and port.

With a slipping clutch, Captain James MacDonald was unable to guide the Connie and she rolled up on the rocks, which were hidden by the high tide.

The 16 girl passengers, the 15 men passengers and the crew of three put on life preservers to be ready should the yacht break up.

Rigs Up Blinker Light

Captain MacDonald rigged up an improvised flashlight by using one of the storage batteries, which he rescued from the motor room. The flashes from the Connie were seen by Captain J. J. Glynn and his men of the coastguard and they put out to the fast sinking yacht.

The code of the sea—women first—was followed in the rescue. Some of those on board, it was stated, were members of the summer colony of Cape Ann, to which yearly come hundreds of summer visitors from many sections of the country.

The coastguard surf boat made two trips to the stranded craft, res- cuing those whose lives were in peril.

Daybreak showed the Connie pin- ned tight on the submerged rocks of the breakwater two miles off shore, listed to starboard and bow down.

Two Attempts to Swim

While waiting to see if the signal lights were effective, and fearing that they were not two young men on the wrecked yacht volunteered to try and swim ashore to get aid. They made their way in the rolling sea several hundred yards from the stranded Connie, when the coast- guard boat put out and took them from the water on the way out on the first trip.

The sea was running high and choppy when the Connie went out of control and landed on the break- water. With the first inrush of water in the engine-room, Captain MacDonald saved a storage battery and a large electric light bulb. With these he rigged up a blinker light and was soon flashing distress calls to the shore. These were finally picked up by the Rockport coast- guard early morning patrol, and Captain Glynn was notified. It was nearly two hours however, with the Connie at the mercy of the running sea, before the rescue was com- pleted.

Fiery Missourian Asserts G.O.P. Nominee Will Be Easy To Defeat

New York, July 11.—Declaring that Herbert Hoover is the easiest man the Republicans could have selected for the Democrats to beat, Senator "Jim" Reed of Missouri de- livered himself of a tirade against the G. O. P. nominee in an inter- view with newspapermen here this afternoon. Reed was in New York attending the meeting of chiefs of the Democratic party.

Speaking of the Democratic con- ference today, Reed said: "We're off to a good start. There isn't any reason why we shouldn't win in November."

Reed was obviously in a happy frame of mind following his con- ference with Governor Al Smith, the Democratic nominee.

He was caustic, however, in his references to Hoover, saying: "Hoover is the easiest man for us to beat. He's not an American—he's an Englishman. If we want to elect an Englishman president of the United States why not get the Prince of Wales and not someone who was sent to this country from England to break down the price of wheat during the war?"

CHICAGO MONEY RATE BOOSTED

Federal Reserve Bank To Charge 5 Per Cent For Rediscounts Now

Washington, July 11.—Reaching a record figure since August, 1922, the Chicago Federal Reserve bank went on a rediscount rate of 5 per cent today.

Federal reserve board officials de- clined comment, but it was antici- pated that unless a marked change occurs in the financial markets, most of the reserve banks will be on the new rate level within a few months.

Since the boost increases the cost of reserve bank credit to the mem- ber banks, the latter undoubtedly will pass along the pressure of higher cost money to the borrowing public, to be reflected in higher open-market money rates and closer scrutiny of loans.

The rate increase, in the heart of the agricultural district, comes at about the time of the beginning of the years movement of farm crops, and for this reason may have a widespread effect.

Officials interpreted the begin- ning of the upward movement of rates, the third fluctuation of this character since the first of the war, as a new move on the part of the reserve system against the tre- mendous speculative use of money. Bank credit has increased greatly since the first of the year, but the increase has been confined prin- cipally to the heavier demand for stock exchange transactions, and not for new commercial demands.

All reports received by the auditor state definitely that Rollins is not eligible to hold office, she said.

Miss Woerther added that Rollins has never demanded his check from her after an opinion was received in March from State Attorney General E. C. Turner which said the following:

RASKOB TO GET CHAIRMANSHIP OF DEMOCRATS

Smith Leaders Agreed On General Motors Head As National Chairman

New York, July 11.—Governor Al- fred E. Smith, assumed control of the Democratic party today.

He selected John J. Raskob, chair- man of the finance committee of the gigantic General Motors cor- poration, to conduct his campaign for the presidency. The Democratic National committee placidly ratified his choice a few hours later by electing Raskob chairman of the Democratic National committee.

Although he is a personal friend and has for a long time been a political supporter of Governor Al- fred E. Smith, Raskob is listed in who's who as a Republican, and has apparently permitted himself thus to be identified with the G. O. P. for several years.

Shortly before the national com- mittee went into session here today it was definitely learned that the Smith leaders had agreed upon Raskob and that his selection by the committee was assured.

Before attending the meeting of the committee, Governor Smith conferred with Senator Reed, of Missouri, Senator Pittman, of Ne- vada, Senator Hawes, of Missouri, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi and Joseph P. Tumulty, former secre- tary to President Wilson.

"What did you talk about?" the governor was asked.

"Politics," he replied with a smile. It was understood that Herbert H. Lehmann had been agreed upon as a director of finance and that Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, ex-gov- ernor of Wyoming, would be se- lected as vice chairman of the national committee.

Tribunal Considering A Decision by Saturday On Slayer's Sanity

Toledo, July 11.—The fate of Charles (Stanley) Hoppe, confessed slayer of Dorothy Sielagowski and Lily Dale Croy was in the hands of Judges Milroy, Martin and Austin here today following the com- pletion of state testimony at the san- ity hearing here yesterday.

It was not expected that the tri- bunal would reach a decision before Saturday.

Both state and defense counsel waived the customary oral argu- ments when testimony by state and defense witnesses was completed. The three common pleas judges immediately took the fate of Hoppe in their hands and after a short deliberation announced more time would be re- quired and that both sides should submit briefs.

The court also stated advance no- tice of the next session would be given. At this session, the court de- cided, the verdict would be made known.

D. W. H. Verba, superintend- ent of the Lima State hospital for the Criminal Insane, testifying as a state witness yesterday stated that in his opinion, Hoppe is sane and re- sponsible for his actions. When he assaulted and killed Dorothy Sielag- owski, the alienist said, "he knew it was an offense against the laws of God and man."

WE ARE INVITING DISASTER

The United States has passed more laws in the comparatively short period of its existence than have all other civilized nations combined since the birth of our Saviour.

This is the statement of T. R. Preston, president of the American Bankers' association, in voicing a warning that this country is inviting disaster because of the unrestrained tendency of our legislative bodies to enact new laws and create illimitable bureaus.

"In the 149 years since the American constitution was written, this government has enacted more laws than all the rest of the civilized world combined since the birth of Christ," is the way Mr. Preston put it. "New ones are proposed at the rate of 25,000 a year and about 11 per cent of these get on the statute books. It would take a man working eight hours a day seven years to read all the laws enacted last year. Yet ignorance of the law is no excuse."

And then President Preston went on to say that the courts are being congested with cases that the district attorney of New York estimates that if every defendant should demand a jury trial, the calendars there would be 500 years behind in four years.

Americans will go to war to give their life's blood for liberty," he concluded, "then turn around and enact laws depriving themselves of all liberty."

It may be urged that the congestion of court dockets might be avoided were all courts to emulate the practice of our own state supreme court and keep their dockets cleaned up, but let us hope that this point will not be raised, for, unless we have been greatly misinformed, our highest state tribunal has achieved its record by allowing attorneys but 15 minutes to a side to plead cases, although many of them are of high importance.

But there is this phase of the proposition which may be offered legitimately although by some it may be considered an added weakness in our legal system. Most countries enact laws for the entire land. Here in the United States congress does that, but in addition thereto we have 48 states enacting their own laws, which naturally brings about yearly, all other things even, the enactment of 48 times as many laws in this land. But even with this phase of the situation considered, we of America enact laws out of all proportion with the turning out of laws in other lands. It is not only a weakness in our system of government, but an abuse which must be corrected. It brings about unconscious law-breaking and finally leads to contempt for the law and conscious law-breaking.

Let us put it another way. There possibly will not be a reader of these lines who is in active life who has not broken some law of the country, state or municipality today.

THE ANSWER IS EASY

A constituent wants to know what has become of the kindly, courteous automobile driver who used to stop his car and inquire whether he could be of service to unfortunate brothers at the roadside changing a punctured tire or tinkering with a reluctant motor.

To such a query there is but one answer—he was held up last night. Safety first instead of courtesy first is now his slogan, and he lets other folks alone.

Seriously, however, there is little need for this roadside courtesy any more, since there is one car for every group of five persons in the United States. When a motorist afflicted with this roadside courtesy bug draws up alongside another car and inquires if he can be of assistance, he not only jams traffic for half a mile behind him, but insinuates by the very nature of his question that the troubled autocrat knows nothing at all about the mechanics of a motor car.

DEMOCRACY DEAD IN ITALY

Italy's new electoral law, passed several weeks ago by the chamber of deputies and now approved by the senate, is as much a triumph for fascism as it is a blow to democratic principles. Perhaps never before in history has a civilized nation so sheepishly renounced hard-won constitutional liberties, at the behest of a small group of men seeking to monopolize governmental authority. In the case of the Italian parliament there was next to no show of opposition; on the contrary there was chiefly an eagerness to obey.

Through the action of the two chambers, representative government in the land of Garibaldi has virtually committed suicide. The system prescribed by the new law will set up government by the executive council of the Fascist party, which, according to the phraseology of Premier Mussolini, becomes an integral organ of the state. The so-called parliament of the future will be a strictly consultative, advisory body, its members owing their places to the council. The legally-recognized trade and professional syndicates, 13 in number, likewise are to be part of the machinery of the Fascist state, but their power will extend no further than the selection of candidates in quotas fixed above and the submission of their lists to the council which will be free to accept or reject nominees, to substitute its own favorites and generally to prepare the final list to suit its own wishes. Then the electorate will be asked to "approve" the council's choice.

In explaining the law to the legislators, Mussolini made no effort to camouflage its character. He intends it to be a negation of democracy, which "does not last in nature" and is frank in saying that "mob" is incapable of intelligent participation in conduct of public affairs. Italy through her parliamentary spokesmen, apparently is willing to confess her unfitness to enjoy democratic institutions. That, of course, is her own lookout. But neither the teaching of fascism, nor Italy's admission of weakness can be regarded as in any degree determining the future of representative government. Fortunately for democracy, its destinies and progress are in the keeping of nations which are not likely to deny their faith for the sake of an autocrat or of a party.—Detroit Free Press.

KANSAS BANS BILLBOARDS

Slowly but cumulatively evidence piles up that the nation is determined to rid its highways of obnoxious billboards. The latest indication comes from Kansas, where the supreme court has upheld the constitutionality of the law prohibiting signs other than road markers on the rights of way of highways. Elsewhere throughout the country the fight against the billboards is being steadily waged. Each season sees an increase in the number of persons determined that the roads shall be kept free from unsightly obstructions. Women's clubs, garden clubs, civic organizations of all sorts, are quietly proceeding with the work of public education. The outcome is inevitable, as every motorist in time becomes an opponent of billboards. The advertisers can not continue to profit from the use of a medium which is obnoxious to the very people to whom it is designed to appeal.

Every decision such as that handed down in Kansas strengthens the case of those who wish to see this defacement of the landscape ended. In view of the short time that has elapsed since the campaign against billboards was opened the progress has been so great as to make it clear that the movement has the support of the people of all sections.—New York Times.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, July 12.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE.

A DAY of enterprise and adventure is the promise read from the astral activities, although there is some danger of a too aggressive and turbulent policy. It would be well to curb the tongue and temper lest these invite to unfavorable conditions. There is likewise some threat of loss and accident, unless proper control be exercised in the behavior. Employment is under fortunate rule.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively and enterprising year, but the best interests may be jeopardized by a tendency to rash, turbulent and excitable deeds. Loss and accidents may be prevented by caution and calmness. A child born on this day may be disposed to be quick-tempered and aggressive; unless these be kept in subjection it may encounter many difficulties. It should make its best success in the employment of others.

Adventures are to the adventurous.—Proverb.

Scientist Offers Economical Remedies For Ills of Farms

Berkeley, Calif., July 11.—Decreasing production by reducing acreage.

Decreasing competition from abroad by tariff.

Expanding markets by seeking new customers or increasing the use of old customers.

Decreasing production costs to meet the lower price levels.

These are the four remedies suggested today by Professor B. H. Crocherson, director of agricultural extension service in the University of California, for the cure of rural ills.

Most people, however, don't take remedies," he says, "until they are sick."

They hope that the weather will change and that they will feel better tomorrow. Our agriculture is not so sick but that many folks are merely "enjoying bad health."

INCREASE IN WEIGHT TEST OF HEALTH

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D., United States Senator From New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

Did it ever occur to you that babies need exercise and should be encouraged to take it? This is just as necessary for them as for adults. This is especially the case if the baby is inclined to get fat. They will take on surplus flesh just as grown-ups do.

The surest test of the welfare of the infant is the regular weekly increase in weight. But you don't want the added weight to be fat, merely. You want the baby to be strong and muscular and not merely "fatty-poly."

The young mother must bear in mind that a tiny baby is a very delicate morsel of humanity. Its back must be supported until the muscles develop.

It is not well to lift the baby by grasping the chest under the arms. The best way is to lift the lower part of the body by the clothing and then slip the flat hands under the back. This permits full support of the back and head and guards against accidents.

The dress of the baby should be so simple as to permit the freest possible movements of the limbs. It will be better still to let the undressed infant play on a blanket. This is equal to the gymnasium training his parents take.

Spread out a blanket on the grass or on the floor in the sunshine, if it is not too bright. Let the baby roll and kick and sprawl and crawl. This gives free action for every muscle and you may be sure the youngster will make use of all the muscles if given half a chance.

When the child is taken out in the baby carriage, thought must be given to its posture. When the child is several months old, no longer will it be satisfied to lie flat on its back. It will be happier if propped up on extra pillows, supporting the sides as well as the back.

Don't treat your infant as if it were a wax lily. Bear in mind all the time that the baby is a young animal entitled to all the privileges and freedom of the natural life.

Study the young chickens, kittens, foxes, birds—all the lower forms of life, give freedom to the little ones and indeed the birds encourage it to the extent of pushing the young out of the nest. The baby will grow and wax strong if given half a chance. Don't hamper the infant by pinning it down too closely.

Let the muscles perform and you promote the good temper. A baby glories in liberty. Gurgles and coos of delight are your reward.

Old Fort Macon To Be Restored To Its Former Condition

Raleigh, N. C., July 11.—Bringing back to historic old Fort Macon into the best state of repair and attractiveness to the public is the object behind the recent appointment of a warden to look after the property, according to the department of conservation and development.

Wilbur Lewis, of Beaufort, has already taken over the work. It was announced at the department of offices here. His first activities will be to clear up the fort grounds and make the premises more attractive in general. The old moat and battlements will be tided up and the interior of the ramparts will be placed in neat appearance.

While funds for work around the fort are limited, the appointment is the first step in putting the place in first class condition it was stated. No extensive repairs will be undertaken this year. On the whole according to Assistant Forester F. H. Chandler, who has made an inspection of the fort recently for the department, the building is in a fairly good state of repair.

EDITOR FINDS CHINA ON ROAD TO PROSPERITY

Nation Awakened by New Steps To Unify Parts And Peoples

San Francisco, July 11.—The China that was content to rest on the laurels and traditions of its sleeping forefathers is no more. Recent political events have strengthened the hold of the young Nationalist party, and San Francisco Chinese see the end of the bloody and bitter struggle of the monarchists again to rule the land of 450,000,000 people.

What all this means was told by Dr. Ng (Cg) Poon Chew, editor of Chung Sai Yat Po, the important Chinese daily newspaper here. Dr. Chew received the degree of doctor letters at the University of Pittsburgh.

"The situation in China has clarified sooner than most of the Chinese anticipated," said Dr. Poon. "Most of the Chinese have long believed that China would be under one leadership, under the leadership of one progressive government. It looks very favorable now that the objective of the Nationalists has been accomplished. This was the seizing of Peking."

Reconstruction Ahead
"From now on we may look forward to a very great period of reconstruction. We may even prophesy that the progress that will be made in the next 30 years in China will be equal if not greater than that in Japan in the last 50 years. The race of people in China today is entirely different than the Chinese of the Boxer rebellion in 1900."

"Why we are sanguine of the future is based upon the personnel of the Nationalist government. All of the leaders in the Nationalist movement are of the younger generation, and most of them are returned students from either the United States, Europe or Japan. These people have come into close contact with the West and they thoroughly realize the situation in which they have been placed by the former government. Consequently they are impatient and they are doing their very best to restore China to a position justified by the great area, resources and population."

"One of the greatest factors working toward the uplift of 450,000,000 people is the new educational movement. Mass education is reducing illiteracy and within the next generation or two illiteracy should disappear in China. The text books now prepared for the Chinese schools, of all grades, are made with the purpose of removing old ideas and traditions of the past from the minds of the young. The young minds now will be directed toward the future. The coming generation will not be bound by the fetters of habits or traditions of the past."

Analyzing China
Analyzing China, its past, present and future, Dr. Chew said the West never need fear aggrandizement by an awakened China.

"Except for the tartars and Mongols, China has never been an aggressive nation seeking territory beyond its borders," Dr. Chew continued.

"The West has always held a mistaken attitude toward China in that the West has mistaken mechanical progress for culture. China has for centuries isolated itself, a self-sufficient nation, disbelieving and refusing to accept the 'new ideas' of the West. Yet China has a greater degree of culture than the West."

"In the West, meaning the United States the people are concentrating themselves to the career of the dollar. The American people are not happy. They live a quantity rather than a quality existence in their little apartments with a kitchenette. The Americans of today are not as happy as were their forefathers even though they have more mechanical conveniences than did their forefathers."

Palestine Insists On Good Behavior From Residents

Jerusalem, July 11.—Residents of the Holy Land who have not had time to become naturalized Palestinians are on their good behavior until they do, even a minor offense making them liable to deportation. Non-citizens must be especially careful not to lose their tempers, it appears from the ruling of a magistrate in Haifa, who imposed a fine of 30 shillings on a tailor who by way of expressing his contempt for a woman customer is said to have spat in her face. The magistrate recommended that the irate tailor be deported to Hungary, where he came from three years ago.

Iowa Oat Acreage Drops, Report Says

Des Moines, Ia., July 11.—Though 1927 was not a favorable year for oats Iowa produced 191,373,095 bushels according to reports of assessors just made public by the weather and crop bureau of the Iowa department of agriculture. "Adverse weather at seeding time caused a reduction of 217,072 acres, as compared with the acreage in oats in 1926. The decreases were heaviest in some of the southern and eastern counties, amounting to about 8,000 acres in Wayne and Van Buren counties. There was a slight increase in several of the northwestern counties, and a marked increase in Lyon and Sioux counties, where the harvested acreage of 1928 had been seriously cut down by drought. About 28.2 per cent of the total cultivated acres in the state were devoted to oats in 1927," the bulletin said.

Wanted More Liquor

Marie Dubin, 19, who was captured and jailed in Chicago following an alleged holdup and bandit car chase in which she and two youths were involved. She is said to have admitted drinking liquor with her companions and holding up a pedestrian to get money for more booze.

Nearby City Takes Youth Of Village

Caldecot, Eng., July 11.—The saddest and loneliest village in England has been brought to light by a tragedy that has robbed it of its only child.

It is this quaint Huntingdonshire village, delightful to the prying eye of the exploring tourist, who must seek it through lanes banked high with blossom-bedecked foliage.

But over all there is an air of calamity. For Caldecot lacks and has lacked for 50 years that local patriotism that keeps the English village eternally young.

Blame Neighbor
Peterborough, a thriving and prosperous village less than nine miles away, is to blame. Peterborough has swallowed up successive generations of Caldecotians so completely that they have lost their original identity, and their flower-scented village mourns them as dead.

Fifty years ago Caldecot was home to some 20 children. They played and romped on the village green, and the by-ways and hedgerows ran with their songs and laughter. The joy of the young was still with Caldecot.

Gradually their numbers lessened. Parents answered the call of Peterborough, and the children themselves reached the working age. In ten years the last child had disappeared from the village, and for 40 years the silence of decaying age settled upon it.

Newcomers introduced two children, but they only stayed a few months, and then they, too moved on to Peterborough. A little while, and then came the motherless nine year old son of C. H. Foddy to stay with his grandparents while his father continued to work in Peterborough. For a little more than a year he was the wonder of the village. Full of childish fun, all the village knew when he was on the warpath for adventure.

Boy Is Drowned
Unhappily he played too near the well and the first his grandfather knew of what had happened was when an alarmed neighbor shouted the news so vociferously that all the village ran to the rescue.

Men of eighty and women who have defied the limit of three score years and ten ran in an effort to save the drowning boy. But their efforts were unavailing, and now Caldecot is again a village without a child.

Now not only have most of the inhabitants deserted the village but the cottages as well are disappearing. Left unattended, they are falling to pieces, the village inn has closed, and all the shopkeepers have put up their shutters forever more.

Caldecot is believed to be the only village in England without a child among its inhabitants.

U. S. EMBASSY IN PARIS SOON IN ANCIENT HOUSE

Wellington Once Rented Million-Dollar Home Built In 1769

Paris, July 11.—There is probably no building in the entire French capital which has had a more varied history than that which the United States government has just purchased for the neat sum of one million dollars. Constructed in 1769 when this part of Paris was still cultivated farm land, it was the hotel of the farmer—General Grumet de la Reyniere. His son inherited it and later rented it to Wellington from 1815 to 1818. After that it became the Russian Embassy and then the Turkish one. It will once more be converted into an embassy, this time an American one.

For almost a century it has been a club, first the Cercle Imperiale, and then Cercle des Champs Elysees and since then the "L'Epantant," or Cercle re l'Union Artistique, commonly called "the Old Men's Home" by envious ones who would like to be members and be able to sit in the cool shade of the big chestnut trees and look out on the beautiful Place de la Concorde.

Paris has a new toy. It has taken the place of the little fuzzy dog, the jumping green frog and the cardboard wrestlers which were to be seen on the sidewalks in front of the large shops and crowded cafes. It is a little pecking bird which could be anything but a robin to a chicadee which winds up with a key and is turned loose upon a fairly smooth surface where, in a most lively and natural fashion hops about and pecks at the ground as if it were really picking up grain or worms. Some of the most enterprising vendors scatter grains of corn about which make the little creatures seem more life-like than ever.

"Skyscraper lamps" made after American models will soon cast their beams along the bright streets of Paris and guide the traffic. The first one set up at the intersection of the Boulevard Haussmann and the Boulevard des Italiens attracted great crowds. Because of its great height the French have named it the "skyscraper lamp."

A smart tailor's shop in the rue de Faubourg St. Honore has a large poster in the window representing George in velvet breeches, silk stockings, slippers and little slippers. Beneath it is the price of the costume in large figures: 499,000 francs, a mere bagatelle of $20.

Another little sign which has been attracting some attention is to be seen in the Boulevard Haussmann. One reads in bold type: "Garage For Rent" in the first line; it is necessary to step up closer to read the second which says: "for baby carriages." It appears that such a parking place has become necessary owing to the fact that many proprietors now forbid householders to put their carriages in the hallways.

The old definition of a Frenchman being a man who eats bread and never travels will have to be changed if the migration to other countries keeps on growing. Recent figures indicate that one million French citizens now live abroad, principally in trans-Atlantic countries and in French colonies.

A congress of French emigrants will be held in Paris in the autumn and will study all problems concerning the French citizen abroad including passports, tariff rates, military service, student exchange and exports, etc. Many French-Americans are expected to attend.

The effect of listening to ultra-fashionable parents is shown in the following conversation:

Father—"Doris your mother has told me you have been misbehaving. I shall have to punish you tonight." Doris, aged nine—"Not tonight, father. I shall be too busy with my dancing lessons; but speak to me again tomorrow regarding an appointment."

The cast included these women: Mrs. Cora Schwartz, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Elma Filson, Mrs. Harry Jackson, Mrs. Harvey Harris, Mrs. Chester Lentz, Mrs. George Kennedy, Mrs. Allen Brown, Mrs. G. H. ## CASHIER DEAD AT KENSINGTON

Kensington, July 11.—Harper Merrick, 68, cashier of the Kensington State bank was found dead at his home here Tuesday.

Merrick had been in good health Monday and was about his work as usual. He was found in the closet of his home lying on his face.

Merrick had been a resident of Kensington for 16 years and was prominent in Masonic circles. His wife died June 12.

He is survived by one son, Charles Merrick, of East Rochester.

HEAVY DAMAGE TO OHIO GRAIN DUE TO RAINS

July 11.—Heavy damage to grain crops, especially wheat and corn have been reported from section of the state to the Columbus weather bureau.

The damage was caused by the rain storms the early part of the week. The condition was not general, however, the reports indicated.

In sections where wind accompanied the rain, wheat, oats and barley were badly matted. Corn was the worst sufferer from the rain, making it impossible for harrowing.

The harvesting of wheat was commenced in the southern part of the state, the report says, this week, and will be general within the next week or 10 days. Oats and barley are ripening fast. The fruits, gardens and meadows, on the other hand have benefited.

Italian Airmen To Try Return Flight

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, July 11.—Captain Arturo Ferrarin and Major Carlo Del Prete, the Italian fliers who flew from Rome to Natal, Brazil, intend to make another non-stop flight back to Italy if they can get permission from their government, according to dispatches from Natal.

They are anxious to fly either from this city or Buenos Aires, Argentina, to the European continent, but have not received the approval of the Italian government as yet. A flight to Europe from either place would better the long distance record of 4,417 miles they set on their flight last week.

VESSEL RADIOS

Recently broken up to permit access by ships. The Soviet ice-breaker, Krassin is reported hemmed in by the ice about 31 miles south of the encampment. It may be necessary for the Krassin to turn back and make another attempt to reach the men from the northwest by way of Inupiat strait.

No Work For Two Days

The fact that the marooned men have not been heard from by radio for more than two days adds to the fears for their safety. According to Lieut. Lundborg, the Swedish aviator who was rescued from the ice-floe after being marooned with the other five men for 13 days, Giuseppe Biagi, the Italian radio operator, was suffering from high fever when he left. It is believed possible that Biagi is now too ill to operate the radio set.

The four other marooned men are Lieut. Alfredo Vigliani, who is in command, Felice Trojani, Prof. Francisco Behounek and Natale Ceccioni, chief mechanic of the Italia, Lundborg revealed. Ceccioni who suffered a broken leg when the Italia crashed on the ice on the morning of May 25, was in a serious condition when Lundborg left.

Believe 16 Now Dead

Sixteen men are already believed to have met death as a result of the Noble expedition, which now looms as the most disastrous of all modern polar expeditions. Nine of these were rescuers who sought to save Noble's men.

Six men of the Italia's crew were carried away with the balloon portion of the dirigible when its gondola crashed to the earth. One man was killed in the crash. Capt. Roald Amundsen, Maj. Rene Guibaud, Lieut. Lift Deirichsen and three others who set out from Tromsø, Norway, in a French plane to search for Noble, have practically been given up for lost. Capt. Sera and his two Norwegian companions, Varming and Vandongen, who set out to search for Noble with a dog-sled, are also believed to have been lost.

MRS. KARP HEADS CATHOLIC WOMEN

Men's Group To Oppose State Eugenics Bill If It's Submitted

Columbus, July 11.—Mrs. Elizabeth Karp, Cleveland, was today president of the National Catholic Women's union, Ohio section, having been named at the closing session of the seventh annual convention held here late yesterday, conducted in conjunction with the Catholic Union of Ohio, the men's organization.

Mrs. Karp's assisting officers were named as follows: Mrs. Marie Reickert, Cleveland, first vice president; Mrs. Clara Layden, Youngstown, second vice president; Mrs. Helen Schneider, Cincinnati, secretary, and Mrs. Bertha Kemuf, Cleveland, treasurer.

Mrs. Joseph Kaelin, Columbus, was selected chairman of the executive committee. The other members are Mrs. M. Rehner, Akron; Mrs. N. Trapp, Cleveland; Mrs. B. Madur, Chillicothe and Mrs. T. Morris, Youngstown.

The men's organization unanimously adopted a resolution requesting the defeat of the sterilization-eugenics bill in case it should be submitted again to the state legislature.

RASKOB

Smith dynasty, and to map out a militant campaign for restoration to power.

They came together with hopes high, with $200,000 already in the party chest, and with the assurance that for the first time since 1916 they are to have an aggressive, well-organized and amply financed campaign, led by a man whose voting ability even the enemy concede.

The spirit that animated today's gathering of Democratic leaders was in marked contrast to the disinterestedness of the Cox campaign of 1920, and the hopelessness that followed.

Only the rumble of rebellion in the south, made by the radical drys and the anti-Tammany bitter-enders, was present to disturb the harmony of the gathering, and most of the leaders believe that this rumble will be drowned out by the roar of the general engagement.

Real Business Co-operation
While the ostensible business of the assembly was the selection of a national chairman, the real business was to get together. Two hours before the national committee meeting, Gov. Smith has a long conference with Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, his chief opponent at the Houston convention. The fiery Missourian was in his usual form.

"Everything I have is at Gov. Smith's disposal," said Reed. "I put myself at his service."

This was but an indication of the eradication of pre-convention opposition and animosities. Reed, the bitter anti-Wilson leader who but eight years ago was almost literally thrown out of the San Francisco convention, is again on the reservation, along with the Wilson leaders who were responsible for his humiliation.

Today's meeting brought Gov. Smith into personal contact with the western and southern leaders for the first time. Some of them were seeing him for the first time in their lives.

Install Goldsmith In High L.O.O.F. Post

Painesville, July 11.—Sol J. Goldsmith, Painesville, was to be installed as grand chief patriarch at the final sessions here today of the 27th annual state convention of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. Goldsmith was grand high chief.

The 500 delegates last night witnessed decoration of chivalry conferred on six chevaliers chosen for meritorious service.

A dress parade was held through Lake Erie college grounds yesterday and a reception for officers and a parade through Painesville streets were also witnessed by hundreds Tuesday afternoon.

186 SURRENDER IN NICARAGUA

Washington, July 11.—Rear Admiral David F. Sellers, in charge of the special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, advised the navy department today of the surrender of 186 bandits at Ocotal.

On July 7, a contingent of 120 "self-confessed bandits" entered the town unarmed and asked for amnesty. Two days later another group of 66 followed.

The bandits were in tatters and had been on short rations for weeks.

NORRIS REFUSES TO MAKE RACE

Washington, July 11.—Virtually the last threat of a serious third party movement against Smith and Hoover faded today when Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska, a formidable figure in the insurgent Republican ranks, announced flatly that he would not be a presidential candidate on any ticket.

EARLY MOVE

state department several days ago. Last minute developments of unknown nature caused it to be delayed. Since that time it has transpired that some of the other powers have evinced an interest in the American project. Whether Kellogg will be able to win England and Japan over to immediate recognition is a question, but if not, it is still likely that the United States will revert to its original plan of lone-hand negotiations with Nanking.

Nanking's recent declaration against renewal of any treaties granting extra-territoriality in any port has complicated the delicate parleys now in progress. The southern government is willing to comply with Kellogg's demand for assurances of adequate protection to all foreign lives and property, but there is still some question in the minds of diplomats whether the internal politics of China are in shape to enable the Nanking regime to carry out such a contract permanently. Rival military leaders, temporarily unified by the drive on Peking, are in several cases held together by tenuous bonds.

Vienna—Dispatches from Katowitz, Upper Silesia, say that 20 children were killed when one of them picked up a hand grenade which exploded. Katowitz was the scene of much fighting during the World war.

Some Birthday Cake

A thousand-pound cake was baked in Chicago to celebrate the wedding of Miss Catherine Salerno and Dr. Nicola Emanuele, who saved the former's life six months ago when she was considered to be on her deathbed. The cake was 6 ft. long, 8 ft. high and more than 30 inches wide.

committees will be called later in other sections of the country, until the women of every region are thoroughly organized. Special efforts will be made in each section to get the independent and seldom-voting class of women out to the polls next November and to get them pledged to the support of Hoover.

The Hoover lieutenants, who sponsored this drive, were cheered by news from North Carolina that Hoover received 750 out of a possible 1,500 votes, cast by women teachers in straw balloting at the Asheville State Normal Summer school. This straw vote, described by Republicans as indicative of Hoover sentiment among school teachers from all sections of the south, confirmed the belief of campaign chiefs that Hoover would get extraordinary support from southern women in the election.

Hoover meanwhile was rapidly closing his affairs at the department of commerce, preparatory to departing for the west coast. Hoover's special train will leave Washington

Hero Nearly Loses Own Life

Herbert E. Lugenbeel of Washington, D. C., hero of a thrilling rescue of five men from the Potomac Rapids at Feeder Dam three years ago, was himself rescued from an all-night perilous perch far out in the stream, opposite where he himself had once played the rescuer. Lugenbeel's peril, shown at top, was brought about through a trip to the rock in the rapids where the body of Miss Carr of Hyattsville, who was drowned with Miss Anderson of Rock Springs, Md., was pinned under an overturned canoe. After nearly losing his life when the canoe in which he and J. H. Angell were "shooting the rapids" overturned, Lugenbeel coolly removed the body from its prison beneath the canoe and let it float down stream where it was recovered. Lugenbeel was finally taken from his perilous position by navy men and is shown being brought ashore

'NO COALITION' DRY PARTY CRY

Prohibits Will Not Merge With Farmer-Labor On National Ticket

Chicago, July 11.—"No coalition with the Farmer-Labor party on candidates."

This was the general attitude of leaders of the Prohibition party convention, each with approximately the same amount of support from the less than 200 delegates present. They are:

Make no nominations for president and vice president. Endorse Hoover and Curtis and a Prohibition platform. Pick a southern Democrat to head the ticket.

In the event the latter program is followed, the discussion was that Tom Love of Dallas, Texas, well known dry Democratic leader in the south and the man who tried to lead a bolt from the Houston convention, should be picked as nominee.

PACIFIC FLIERS ARE BACK HOME

San Francisco, July 11.—After participating in one of the most thrilling flights in the history of aviation, Harry Lyon and James Warner, navigator and radio operator of the Southern Cross, returned to the United States from Australia today, to receive a rousing welcome.

On May 31, these two fliers, with Pilots Kingsford Smith and Ulm, the intrepid Australians, started their epic flight to the country "down under." There were but few who thought the 7800-mile flight, all of it practically over water, would terminate successfully.

The fliers steamed into San Francisco bay this morning.

TURNER STRIKES AT ENDORSEMENT BEGG RECEIVES

Says He Refuses To Wear
Kid Gloves and Pussy-foot on Ohio Issues

CLAIMS UTILITIES
SEEK BEGG VICTORY

Believes Taft Holdings,
Not Wet-Dry Reasons,
Caused Editorial

Youngstown, July 11.—Declaring that he refused "to wear kid gloves in dealing with public questions" and did not intend to "pussyfoot to obtain political preferment," Attorney General Edward C. Turner, in an address here this afternoon, criticized the Cincinnati Times-Star's recent editorial endorsement of Congressman James T. Begg, Sandusky, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

Other candidates for the G. O. P. nomination for governor include Turner and Myers Y. Cooper, Cincinnati.

Addressing the Women's Republican club here, Turner said he suspected that the public utilities question, instead of the wet-dry issue, was the real determining factor which induced the Times-Star to endorse Begg. Turner said Cooper as well as himself was on record as favoring repeal of the Pence act which deals with rates collected by public utilities.

Links Begg and Utilities
After giving his reasons for the conclusion that "the Tafts," who "own" and "control" the Times-Star, are "utility-minded," Turner cited "circumstantial evidence" in support of the belief that public utilities are friendly towards Begg's gubernatorial candidacy.

He named a number of persons said to be closely identified with public utilities who, he declared, "are actively supporting Mr. Begg."

"So long as the 18th amendment remains in the federal constitution, and so long as such a law as the Volstead act remains upon the federal statute books, wet or dry is not a state issue," declared Turner, referring to the Times-Star's editorial comment that Cooper is "too dry" and Turner "too wet." Begg was classed as "a moderate wet."

Cites Prohibition Aid
"The successful candidate for governor must take an oath to support the constitution of the United States," Turner continued.

"The Democratic state prohibition commissioner said publicly that I gave his department more cooperation in the enforcement of law than any other attorney general."

"The Times-Star's editorial endorsement of Hon. James T. Begg for governor should be considered in the light of certain facts," said Turner. That paper is Taft-owned and Taft-controlled. The Tafts are generally understood to be the owners of large blocks of public utility stocks. The records at the public utilities commission show the Tafts to be large holders of the stock of the Cincinnati Suburban Telephone company.

Interested In Columbia Co.
"The Tafts are also generally understood to be financially interested in the Columbia Gas & Electric corporation. This corporation owns the Logan Gas company which has 33 rate cases pending before the utilities commission of Ohio and which is collecting some of its advanced rates under the Pence law."

"Both the Cincinnati Suburban Telephone company and the Columbia Gas & Electric corporation, through its subsidiaries, are deeply interested in the retention of the Pence law, in the personnel of the utilities commission and in the bases upon which utility rates are fixed and utility financing permitted," Turner stated. "The governor who will be elected this fall will appoint a majority of the membership of the utilities commission which will control the policy of that commission for years to come."

Points To Backers
Turner said it is "no secret" that Walter F. Brown, Toledo, and Maurice Maschke, Cleveland, credited with supporting Begg, "watch legislation very closely and that both have been identified from time to time with public utilities."

"In addition, such gentlemen as D. C. Pemberton, a registered utility lobbyist, Rollie Reese, Youngstown, who is frankly a utility man; Joe Heintzman, Cincinnati; Harry Wilson, Cleveland, all with utility connections and all of whom spend a large part of their time in Columbus during legislative sessions, are actively supporting Mr. Begg," Turner stated. "Then there is Mr. Begg's publicity agent, who runs a legislative information, and Mr. Begg's manager, the Honorable Heke Donithen, Marion, who has been in the employ of the Logan Gas Co."

Four U. S. Olympic Stars

That women athletes will play important roles at the forthcoming Olympic games is conceded by trainers who have witnessed American try-outs. Here are four of the fair sex whose selection already has been announced: Mary Washburn (left), Millrose A. C. sprinter; Jean M. Shiley, of Haverford Township, who will compete in the Olympic high jump event; Jessie Cross, Millrose A. C. track and field star, and, inset, Florence Wright, of New York, who will represent the United States in the women's 220-yard dash.

Great American Olympic Team Off For Games At Amsterdam

BY DAVIS J. WALSH
New York, July 11. — America's newest army of expedition set sail at noon today on the steamship President Roosevelt, bound for Amsterdam.
The American Olympic team, handpicked flower of a nation's athletic life, is the expeditionary force that is sailing this time.
They will arrive in Amsterdam, pitch their camp on shipboard in the harbor there, with training and diet and healthful rest, make ready for the start of the great international meeting on July 29. Few American teams have been better prepared for the ordeal. The team looks like on that will not have to depend on the field events to bring it victory as was the case in 1924 at Paris. Indeed, the sprint squad may even lack some of the former's balance in the field. If it does, its greater strength in the track should more than overcome this factor. It is an excellent bet that this team will win more than one "flat" race, the inevitable indictment lodged against America's victory in 1924.
Our sprinters, headed by the great Wyckoff, Paddock and Borah, are second to none; we have two relay teams that figure to be faster than the 1924 squads and both of these were good enough to win in record time.
Barbuti, Snider, Phillips and Tierney are at least in the equal of the 400-meter men at Paris, while the presence of Hahn in the 800 and 1,500-meter races means that America has a better chance to win these events than at any time since the heyday of Sheppard and Meredith.
The triple-jump field is no better and no worse than it was at Paris; the shot putters are definitely better, and it might be added so were the foreign competitors. However, we lack a footstall in the hammer throw, having only four average men. The javelin men are like the

HOMERS KEEPING CARDS IN FRONT

Waners Help Bucs Gather Fourth Straight Win; Indians Lose Two

New York, July 11.—Six National League clubs are "seeing red" today for two teams sporting crimson garb are leading the pack with the jump of the Cincinnati Reds to second place. The Reds' winning streak of seven games has put them ahead of the New York Giants while the St. Louis Red Birds, 4½ games ahead of Cincinnati, have dropped only one game to the eastern invaders during their present home stand.
Home runs are keeping the Cardinals in front. The club leads the league in this specialty with a total of 67 for the season, fourteen more than the Giants and 16 more than the Cubs. Four circuit clouts—two by High, a substitute, and one apiece by Hafey and Harper—and a five hit performance by Spittin' Clarence Mitchell gave the Cards a 5 to 1 win over the Giants yesterday.
Pete Donohue finally got a good game out of his system and the Reds breezed home to a 12 to 4 victory over the Robins.
Singles y Big and Little Poison Waner in the ninth gave the Pirates a 6 to 5 verdict over the Phils. Their fourth straight win.
Pitcher Kent Greenfield of the Braves, the original Kentucky wild man, walked five men in the fifth when the Cubs scored six runs. Hornsby's 16th homer tied it up in the ninth, but the Cubs grabbed a 7 to 6 decision on Hartnett's single.
By taking both twins of a twin bill from Cleveland, 9 to 5 and 9 to 0, Washington passed Chicago and tied the Indians for fourth place. Cleveland couldn't hit Gaston in the pinches in the nightcap and had 14 men left on bases.
Cleveland is giving Bruce Caldwell, former Yale star, a chance at first base. He got his first hit in the Big League.
The veteran Frank O'Rourke, who has replaced young Larry Betten-court at third base for the St. Louis Browns, drove in three runs and scored another — the Browns trimmed the Red Sox, 4 to 2.

COLLEGIANS TO MAKE DEBUT IN LOOP TONIGHT

The Collegians will make their debut in the City league at 6 to night at Centennial park against the strong Mullins "mush" ballers.
The Collegians' outfit is made up of ex-collegians, college students home for the summer, and High school stars. The playing list of the team contains the following:
Charles Coffee (Ohio State); Chester Kridler (Case and Western Reserve); Gus Tolerton (Miami); James Grafton (Missouri); H. Oscar Bell (Ohio U.); George Vollmer (Ohio U.); Walter Harsh (Bethany); Ted Scott, Cleveland; and Fred Guilford, Herman Litt, Lee Christen, Wilbur Day, George Earley, Charles Herbert, and James Gregg, Salem High school.

The champion also punched the bag for four rounds and rowed two miles in a small boat.

"THE CIRCUS"

"Peanuts," "peanuts," sawdust, line lemonade, clowns, freaks, tigers, roaring lions, acrobats, wire-walkers and Charlie Chaplin in a brand new role will all be at the Grand tonight and for the rest of the week in the comedy king's new show, "The Circus."

With Charlie appear Merna Kennedy, Betty Morrissey, Harry Crocker, Allan Garcia, Steve Murphy and Doc Stone in supporting roles. The story of the show was written by Chaplin and produced by the Charles Chaplin Film Corporation with Chaplin directing.

The story opens with Charlie entering the scene, out of work, homeless—a tramp. He runs into a job as a circus handy man after a thrilling adventure as a pickpocket's employee, but his awkwardness causes him to lose even that job.

But the workmen of the circus call a strike, and he is hired back. While at work for the second time under the "big tent" he falls in love with the circus owner's daughter, played by Merna Kennedy.

A new performer, Rex, king of the high wire, joins the troupe and the girl falls in love with him, regardless of Charlie's strong affection for her. Harry Crocker, a Yale graduate plays the part of Rex.

But one day the circus wire walker falls to appear. Charlie is pressed into service and becomes the hit of the show, even though he doesn't know it.

Fun and lots of it follow until finally Charlie, protecting the girl from abuse by her father is fired. He runs into more fun and adventures, and finally plays the part of a match-maker, bringing together the girl he loves and her lover and winning for them happiness. Charlie plays his usual sad role, the role where he stands neglected with only the recollections of the night have been but happy for the happiness brought to the girl he loved and his friend.

The film will remain at the Grand through the week with the comedy, "Three Missing Links," and "Melting Millions."

"BEAU SABREUR"

Intrigue, love and adventure on the vast Sahara desert offer something spectacular and refreshingly attractive in the line of motion picture entertainment at the State tonight, where Paramount's new production is being shown.

With a cast of quality and filled with unusual photography, "Beau Sabreur" comes as companion to "Beau Geste" both from the pen of Percival C. Wren whose stories of the desert and the Foreign Legion have proved popular.

Gary Cooper plays the role of Maj. Henri de Beaujolais, the dashing and virile young Frenchman who vows he will never look at a woman and then meets one. Cooper is ideal in the part and gives a fine performance of the handsome soldier-sheik of the burning sands. Evelyn Brent is the girl, Mary Van Orburg, who becomes mixed up in a series of thrilling adventures with Cooper. Noah Beery, William Powell, Mitchell Lewis, Roscoe Karns, Joan Standing, Arnold Kent, Frank Reicher, Raoul Paoli and Oscar Smith, are other members of the strong cast.

The battle scenes, in which a horde of Touaregs, the desert wolves, sweep down on a little oasis, and meet up with several dynamite mines planted in the sands, present amazing sequences.

"Beau Sabreur" has everything that goes to make a great production. It has thrills galore, heart interest, a romance that is hard to equal and a cleverly entwined thread of comedy.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

Hints on Training Household Help

Every home where help is employed, from the one helper in the modest home to an appreciable number in the large home, training must be done. No matter how expert the help happens to be when hired each household is different and some training must always be done. Each housewife is or should be an executive head and have her system so worked out that she can teach it quickly, thoroughly, and in a simple way so any one can understand her methods.

The same ground in general must be covered in large and small establishments, differing only in the amount there is to do and restrictions required. In hiring help perfect frankness should be expressed, the method and work explained so there could be no misunderstanding. Time off should be understood, the matter of uniforms, or what is desired along these lines, made as clear as possible. Above all, a distinct understanding as to wages time of payment, should be final. If there is any fault to be found then it is hardly worth while to go on with the bargain.

Even a part time helper needs training to operate under the household system used. The home that is generously equipped with labor and step-saving devices and a good working plan can be operated with well trained help at less outlay in wages than the hit or miss household without system or working conveniences. The home wherein only one helper is employed must be augmented by extra part time helpers. With washing machine, mangle, dish washer and vacuum and other conveniences, one woman cannot swing the work and do the cooking unless the mistress and others co-operate with her. If she makes beds, does the marketing, light dusting, and makes the pastry and sauces, does any of the extra work connected with caring for the table and linens, the maid can do the rest of the work and the household will run smoothly and efficiently.

It is extra guests, late afternoon teas, and being sent on errands that breaks into the working time. The efficient housekeeper has few errands to be done though emergencies frequently arise that make an errand obligatory.

Where the work is apportioned between a cook, waitress and housemaid, nurse, a two day a week laundress and a man once a week to beat rugs and wash windows, each one has regular tasks to perform. On cook's day out the housemaid cooks, on the housemaid's day out the waitress does her work and when the waitress is off the housemaid does her work. In this way no one is inconvenienced and the household moves on without a jar. The mistress here does the marketing and all other ordering, consults with cook, inspects all supplies, and all bills go to her desk for checking and payment.

Where there are more in help, including a competent butler, he does the checking up and often does the paying of bills. The larger the household the more business-like it becomes. Usually monthly accounts are carried with all the trades people dealt with.

The mistress must understand the duties of each helper. The waitress must be put through her paces several times before taking hold formally. The other workers the same. The cook must cook a certain number of selected dishes to judge her skill before they may be sent to table. Especially is this so if the hostess has made a reputation for the excellence of her table and is then obliged to make a change. Such a housekeeper guards her special recipes and does not allow them to be taken away by departing cooks.

Discover Statues, Sphinxes in Tomb Of Thotmes' Queen

Cairo, July 11.—Statues and sphinxes in granite and limestone which Queen Hatshep-sut, wife of Thotmes II, had placed in her temple destroyed and buried in the reign of her successor Thotmes III, have been discovered in a quarry of the XIII Dynasty at a depth of from fifteen to twenty metres below the recent surface unearthed by the expedition of the Metropolitan Museum of Art of New York.

All the sculpture had been broken up, often into very small pieces. Up to the present it has only been possible to reconstruct two statues into approximately their original state. These are a pair of red granite standing statues about 245 centimetres high.

Nothing except chips of stone and debris was found in the granite sarcophagus chamber of the great royal tomb of the third dynasty at Sakkarah, thought to be that of Zoser, which has recently been excavated by the Egyptian department of antiquities. It is believed that this debris was placed in the tomb between the sixth and 12th dynasties, by a robber who had tunneled through the filling of the shaft breaking up the granite plug closing the circular aperture in the roof of the sarcophagus chamber.

Owing to the cautious method of excavations, the whole structure of this tomb has been preserved intact.

"You insist on having a box at the opera?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I am willing to pay extra. There is always some corner in a box where it is possible to sleep, unobserved."

STYLE EDICTS

London, July 11.—A wave of modesty seems to be sweeping over England. If one can judge by the models of fashionable gowns that have been ordered for the great social parade at Ascot.

Whilst at tennis or golf Miss 1928 will continue to appear in sleeveless frocks and knee-length skirts, dress designers are insisting that when she "dresses herself up" for more formal occasions she shall appear with sleeves reaching to her wrists and with a skirt of such length that when she sits down the hem of her gown shall cover at least four inches below the knee.

Most of the diaphanous frocks of printed georgette are provided with long coats of the same material. Whether this is for reasons of modesty or the keen winds of the typical English summer day remains to be seen.

Lace, to judge by the number of orders placed, is to be more popular than ever at Ascot this year. Quite a number of the gowns are designed with hems longer at the back than at the front, but the ankle-length picture frock is entirely absent.

If a man be imbued with a generous mind, this is the best kind of nobility.—Plato.

The Sleeveless Dress

The Summer Wardrobe Features
Silks and Chiffons as Well as
Tennis Frocks of Linen
Without Sleeves

ONCE again the mode is sponsoring a type of frock that stresses simplicity of line. It is adaptable to both the afternoon and morning frocks as well as those for sports. There is no absence of feminine feeling—in fact the feminine mood is dominant—but there is seen a genuine simplicity of silhouette.

One of the means of bringing to the front the simpler summer mode is found in the frock that is made without sleeves. Sleeves of allured lines belong to a past mode and today's sleeves are apt to be voluminous or puffed, tucked or cut along unusual lines. Consequently, the mode is introducing frocks with either very short sleeves or with no sleeves at all.

The tennis frock naturally is found without sleeves. It gives freedom of movement and also suits the picture of this sport to appear in a simple one piece frock—washable, of course—without sleeves.

The afternoon frock of dotted silk or flowered crepe is successfully designed without sleeves. All sorts of fluttering movements are seen in capes or scarfs with bows and ribbons to achieve a feminine feeling.

Doris Dawson, in the First National motion picture, "Here Comes the Band," wears a charming little afternoon frock of black and white figured silk. Its sleevelessness points to a new note as well as its smart modified polonaise effect with apron strings tied across the back. The total effect is one of careful warmth and freshness.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby—Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the over-stimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Restlessness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations. Adv.

London, July 11.—A wave of modesty seems to be sweeping over England. If one can judge by the models of fashionable gowns that have been ordered for the great social parade at Arcot.

Whilst at tennis or golf Miss 1928 will continue to appear in sleeveless frocks and knee-length skirts, dress designers are insisting that when she "dresses herself up" for more formal occasions she shall appear with sleeves reaching to her wrists and with a skirt of such length that when she sits down the hem of her gown shall cover at least four inches below the knee.

Most of the diaphanous frocks of printed georgette are provided with long coats of the same material. Whether this is for reasons of modesty or the keen winds of the typical English summer day remains to be seen.

Lace, to judge by the number of popular places, is to be more popular than ever at Ascot this year. Quite a number of the gowns are designed with hems longer at the back than at the front, but the ankle-length picture frock is entirely absent.

If a man be imbued with a generous mind, this is the best kind of nobility.—Plato.

The Sleeveless Dress

The Summer Wardrobe Features
Silks and Chiffons as Well as
Tennis Frocks of Linen
Without Sleeves

ONCE again the mode is sponsoring a type of frock that stresses simplicity of line. It is adaptable to both the afternoon and morning frocks as well as those for sports. There is no absence of feminine feeling—in fact the feminine mood is dominant—but there is seen a genuine simplicity of silhouette.

One of the means of bringing to the front the simpler summer mode is found in the frock that is made without sleeves. Sleeves of allured lines belong to a past mode and today's sleeves are apt to be voluminous or puffed, tucked or cut along unusual lines. Consequently, the mode is introducing frocks with either very short sleeves or with no sleeves at all.

The tennis frock naturally is found without sleeves. It gives freedom of movement and also suits the picture of this sport to appear in a simple one piece frock—washable, of course—without sleeves.

The afternoon frock of dotted silk or flowered crepe is successfully designed without sleeves. All sorts of fluttering movements are seen in capes or scarfs with bows and ribbons to achieve a feminine feeling.

Doris Dawson, in the First National motion picture, "Here Comes the Band," wears a charming little afternoon frock of black and white figured silk. Its sleevelessness points to a new note as well as its smart modified polonaise effect with apron strings tied across the back. The total effect is one of youthful charm and freshness.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby—Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations. Adv.

Britain's Leviathan of the Sky

The biggest heavier-than-air craft, the "Inflexible," was one of the surprises at the British Air Pageant at Croydon. The plane is an all-metal, tri-motored monoplane with a wing-spread of 150 feet. It weighs 14 tons, but experts claim that it will remain aloft with only one of its Rolls-Royce engines in commission. The huge size of the plane is illustrated graphically by the six-footer who is standing against one of the landing wheels.

Modern Girl Vexing Problem For Cops In Japan's Capital; She Rouges, Likes Tattooing

Tokyo, June 11.—There probably is no more irritating problem before the metropolitan police of Tokyo today than the "modern girl"—which is nothing more disconcerting when translated than the "modern girl."

Japan's flapperdom is a field of research in its own and the police department has so recognized the emergency by establishing the Bureau for the Suppression of the Criminally Inclined.

This bureau, which might appear upon casual observation as some sort of theoretical body for dealing with "twisted mentalities" and "hereditary behaviorism" is really occupied with the eccentricities of the modern girl and her influence on society in general.

Dangerous Thoughts
The bureau is closely inter-related with the bureau for the suppression of "Dangerous Thought." In fact, they operate to a large extent hand-in-hand except when the latter bureau is occupied with communist round-ups and similar trends of uneasiness in Japan's mass society.

There have been a number of alarming trends recently in the matter of young womanhood, especially when viewed from the standpoint of the nation's rigid adherence to many solidly imbedded customs. It must be remembered that while Japan has constructed one of the finest electrical railway systems in the world, ocean-spanning airplanes, maintained superbly equipped armies and as all the accessories of western civilization from radios to bridge tables, she nevertheless still removes her shoes indoors, relegates the wiper to comparative obscurity, eats with chopsticks and approaches Occidental dress very cautiously.

Western dress among the flappers of Japan is the greatest rarity. Only the children approach the Occidental dress and these in the form of plain, unattractive uniforms. For one thing, the Japanese girl has physical limitations. Her hereditary bowed limbs, handed down from centuries of cross-legged sitting and her generally short figure are incompatible with the short skirts and similar earmarks of the American and European flapper.

Influence of Movies
Japan's flappers have been influenced by the movies only to the extent of bobbed hair, rouge and a few seemingly harmless indulgences in would-be sex appeal fashions, but the police are distinctly annoyed nevertheless.

Recently rouge was the great source of Japan's womanhood. The police made much of the sudden increase in cosmetic applications, there were public lectures, radio, heart-to-heart talks, distribution of pamphlets and other manifestations of concern for anything striking at the immediate social lives of the Japanese requires attention. The telephones and phonographs are tolerated as mechanical necessities and amusements along with other 20th century importations, but the social traditions of centuries must not be disturbed. After the rouge scare, which persisted despite the campaign, there came the "obi" civil. The obi is a long strip of gaily colored ribbon or cloth, worn, presumably, about the waist of the kimono. It is one of the prize possessions of the Japanese girl. In the upper classes, obis are often worn at a cost of $500 or more, the material consisting of spun gold with elaborate designs.

The obi has been worn for centuries, the police contend, as an accessory for protection against the elements in the winter and as a purely decorative feature in the summer and warmer seasons. But the girls began to move the obi higher and higher until the police became alarmed to the extent of issuing a decree that "henceforth the obi must be worn about the waist." By its advance upward, the obi was contributing toward sex appeal, the bureau held.

Go In For Tattooing
But the greatest blow of all has just fallen. The flapper is going in for tattooing. So violently has the bad reacted on the bureau, that special squads have been detailed to round-up the originators of the fad and dole out suitable punishment.

One girl taken into custody was found to have had her entire body tattooed in the form of a huge red peony, with many-hued dragons encircling her arms. "While there is life in me, I need no advice," were the words found tattooed on one wrist. The police were shocked immeasurably as such heresy. Waitresses, dancing girls and office girls are rapidly taking to the fad, according to the police. Eyes, brows tattooed in half moon shape, dainty red hearts in the ears and symbols of secret school societies on their arms, seem to be the most popular marks.

Police have branded the craze as detrimental to the social well being of the nation and have laid the fad to the originality of "two or three dissipated youths." Strong measures will be enforced to check the practice, it has been announced.

Denver Fireman Is Gaining Reputation With Artist Brush

Denver, July 11.—Monotony of a fire operator's life at the city hall here to some appears only as a chance to further develop his talent for oil painting to Thomas Rowbotham, who has just turned 28. In his spare moments from the fire department switchboard, which he presides over, Rowbotham wields his paint, brush and chisel.

He sits with his easel day in and day out and does the type work which authorities recognize as indicative of considerable talent. While the rest of the firemen sit and play bridge, five hundred, quots, chess and checkers, dominoes, and even rummy, Rowbotham sits and paints waiting for the thrill that comes when an alarm comes in after many hours of waiting.

Recently Rowbotham added to his hobbies that of carving. He has carved two beautiful sets of lamps wired for electricity. One set consists of miniature lighthouses with painted rock bases. Two very small Dutch mills make up the other set.

The artists principal tools are a slim camel's hair brush and a pen knife. He declares that he has never sold a painting or carving, but that he has had numerous offers for some of his works. Rowbotham either gives his work to some friend or keeps it in his own home.

FORMER PEERESS DIES IN PENURY IN DENVER HOTEL

Lady Cunliffe's Fortune Dwindled to Nothing After 30 Years

Denver, July 11.—Born in the lap of luxury and cradled midst all that great wealth could buy, only to die penniless and alone in Denver General hospital was the tragic story revealed here following the death last week of Mrs. Elsie Braun, identified as Lady Cunliffe, former British peeress and daughter of the late Lord and Lady Dunbar, the former at one time lord of the British admiralty. She was 69 years old and was born in Aberdeen, Scotland.

Following the death of her husband, Lord Cunliffe, Lady Cunliffe sought solace in new surroundings and came to America more than 30 years ago. She became internationally known for her brilliant writings and philanthropic work, and as a lecturer on theosophy. She traveled to every corner of the globe disseminating her writings and talks on evolution, Karma and reincarnation.

Fortune Dwindled
Lady Cunliffe's reputed large fortune had dwindled in recent years until at the time of her death it was said by the executor of her will that there was barely enough funds to provide a decent burial, and the friends who were close to her in prosperity were missing during her last days of penury.

During the years she traveled as an ordained minister of theosophy she saw happiness around the corner and married Joseph Braun, a noted musician. He lived only a few years, however, and again she was alone.

Lady Cunliffe's philanthropies included numerous financial gifts but were always given out without the blare of trumpets, and the public knew little of this phase of her career.

After her fortune had gone, Lady Cunliffe settled in Denver, living a quiet, unobtrusive life, continuing her study and preachments on theosophy. She had few intimates during the last years and it was 48 hours after her death before her real identity became known.

Remembered Man Servant
A pathetic memory of her thoughtfulness was related here by Milner Gleaves, Denver attorney named executor of Lady Cunliffe's will. A number of years ago, Gleaves said, the peeress drew up a will in her own handwriting, naming Eugene Roth of Los Angeles, as chief beneficiary of her then wealth. Roth, the will said, "has been for many years my faithful man servant."

So far as can be learned Roth is now dead.

Lady Cunliffe was found destitute and actually suffering from pangs of hunger in an obscure downtown hotel, "to proud" to beg. She was taken to Denver General hospital and died within a few days. The body was buried in a local cemetery.
